

One in a Million!!!!

I approached Michele Frew as I found, as a teacher of fourth graders, that there was a lack of study skills and good learning practice incorporated into the curriculum. Whilst some teachers would incorporate these skills as "par for the course" many had not had further training in the specifics of the process.

I chose her because of her excellent track record and her dedication to making a difference in children's learning.

Her work ethic, manner and thirst for new ideas while not throwing away winning practices is a recipe for success!

She solved the problem by offering a unique approach going the extra mile knowing what the expectations were for the grade and incorporating varied tools such as emotional awareness, thinking styles thinking strategies and study strategies using content appropriate to the subject and age group.

I love her approach especially as she always has the children's best interest at heart thus using all the tools at her disposal to achieve successful results – which she does. The result is -enthusiastic excited children who are excited about learning. They feel success on numerous levels. Her mild firm manner and a sense of competence adds to the positive mix.

The experience was so successful that some children went on to request private tuition and more importantly children went away with life skills and a sense of confidence in their own well being and competence. Teachers went away with the skills to impart in their own classes for the future.

I would highly recommend Michele Frew to parents and teachers who would want children to have an advantage to learning, that is not available in the curriculum, but that has a huge impact on the learning for school purposes further study and life!
